Mark A. Flessner

Mark A. Flessner is a Chicago trial attorney with more than three decades of professional legal experience. He most recently served as Partner at the firm Holland & Knight.

He is well-versed in handling sophisticated matters across numerous industry sectors, having represented clients in many areas, including healthcare, retail, manufacturing, insurance and finance. He also has substantial experience investigating wrongdoing within the corporate world. Mr. Flessner has extensive trial experience, which includes bringing more than 50 cases to verdict and arguing more than 40 cases on appeal. He has advised litigation risk and assisted clients facing government scrutiny for criminal, civil and regulatory matters. Additionally, Mr. Flessner has represented clients facing complex commercial litigation, internal corporate investigations, grand jury inquiries and issues involving the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA).

Prior to entering private practice, Mr. Flessner was a federal prosecutor at the United States Attorney's Office in Chicago for 12 years. He led major investigations involving sophisticated and complex financial fraud. His prosecutions included public corruption, bank fraud, insurance fraud, securities fraud, white collar crime, gangs and narcotics cases. Mr. Flessner also has investigated international money laundering, terrorism and cases involving national security.

Mr. Flessner has donated significant legal time to pro bono activities and was the pro bono partner for Holland & Knight's Chicago office. He was a lead attorney on a death penalty habeas corpus petition in Alabama and on a high-profile immigration case in Chicago. He also served as a member of the Federal Defender Panel in the Northern District of Illinois, providing legal representation to the indigent.
